

PREPARED FOR FREEDOM, INC. • FAITHANDRESULTS.COM

Faith, backed by results — and a website that finally says so.

The plan for a new faithandresults.com.

WHAT YOU'VE ALREADY EARNED

Credentials most firms would put on a billboard.

FDIC

HUD

Federal Home Loan Bank

NeighborWorks America

Fifteen cities. Four pillars. Decades of trust.

Today, all of it is buried in paragraphs.

THE FIRST THING THE WORLD READS

Google shows your name
next to this word:

“Ecomonic”

The homepage title is misspelled — on the most visible line the organization owns. For a firm whose product is credibility, that one word does damage every single day. It disappears on day one of the rebuild.

WHAT ELSE THE CURRENT SITE COSTS

Four more doors closed.

It turns visitors away.

Security settings answer many legitimate visits with “Forbidden.” Shared links show up blank.

Pages named in code.

NFLC. CFLC. FCDC. Insiders understand; the HUD program officer and the pastor in Houston do not.

No way to say yes.

No “book a training.” No partner form. No newsletter. No give button. Interested people arrive — then leave.

Fifteen cities, invisible.

The most impressive fact about Freedom, Inc. is scattered across pages nobody visits.

THE NEW FRONT DOOR — FIRST SCREEN, NO SCROLLING

Faith, backed by results.

Economic development, education, housing, and sustainability — delivered with faith communities in fifteen American cities.

FDIC

HUD

Federal Home Loan Bank

THE ARCHITECTURE

Thirteen pages become six.

- Home — the credential wall & the one-line mission
- The Work — four pillars, real outcomes
- Collaboratives — every program in plain English
- Cities — fifteen cities, one clickable screen
- About — the principals & the record, told properly
- Connect — partner · train · subscribe · give

Every acronym expanded on first touch. Every visitor finds their door.

THE SCREEN THAT WINS MEETINGS

Fifteen cities. One glance.

BUILT FOR EVERY PAIR OF EYES

No fine print. Anywhere.

This deck — and the whole new site — is set in Atkinson Hyperlegible, the typeface created by the Braille Institute for readers with aging and low vision, with bold slab headlines and deep contrast.

Elders, deacons, and board members read every word without reaching for their glasses. For a congregation-rooted audience, that is strategy, not decoration.

THE NUMBERS

Same discipline. New machine.

$800

One time — the rebuild, migration, search repair across fifteen city markets, and the typo's funeral.

$400/mo

The retainer — news & events kept alive, the newsletter actually sent, quarterly impact updates.

$0/mo

Hosting & software. The current hosting bill stops existing — money moves from servers to visibility.

THE FIRST NINETY DAYS

Live in two weeks. Growing by month three.

- Weeks 1-2: New site live. The misspelling is history. Every share unfurls with the credential wall.
- Weeks 3-4: Cities map published. Partner, training, and giving doors open. Newsletter capture begins.
- Months 2-3: Impact numbers published. First newsletter sent. Rankings rebuilt city by city.

To begin: hosting access · the outcome numbers · the leadership story.
